Maggie Tuttle is the founder for 'Children Screaming to be Heard'. Her aims and objectives is to not only to have this monument erected for the children in London but to have 'safe houses' for the thousands of children abused in the 'care' system who have no where and no one to turn to! She has seen it first hand in the streets of children where they, as young as 5 have run away and end up on the streets.

Fundraising events include a concert at the O2 arena with world celebrities in 2014. Donations for the safe houses and monument are welcomed anytime and can be made on the website.

Proposal is for 5 life size models of children comprising of 3x girls and 2x boys cast in bronze.

Images shown are actual sculpture commissions and show the level of detail that will be applied to the finished monument

Laura Lian is a professional artist & sculptor who has come up with the concept for the monument for 'Children need to be heard'

The building blocks of what children need in a caring society.

The statue will be approximately 10 feet tall. With the blocks cast in concrete. The children, 5 models will be made in bronze.
